

Red Power Called 'Terrible Warning'

By the Associated Press

Senator Symington, Democrat of Missouri, conducting a Senate investigation of United States air power as compared with Russia's, said today Nikita Khrushchev's boast of H-bomb and missiles superiority "is a significant and terrible warning to the American people and the free world" if it is true.

Word of the Khrushchev statement was relayed by reporters to Senator Symington at a closed-door meeting of his special Senate Armed Services Subcommittee with Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

"If true," Senator Symington said in a note sent out to the newsmen, "it is a significant and terrible warning to the American people and the free world."
